Language Certificate

Zhao Zixuan is the student of the Joint Programme between BUPT and QMUL enrolled in 2014.

These Joint Programmes between BUPT and QMUL are taught entirely in English and all coursework and examinations are in English. Students on the programme are used to communicating in English and become completely fluent in the language to the same extent as if they had studied in the UK.

By the end of the second year students will have achieved an English level equivalent to CEFR B2 in all four components (spoken, written, listening and reading).

Students are immersed in English from the start of the programme with all technical modules taught and examined in English.

To support the development of English Language skills, there are over 220 hours of English teaching across the first two years of the programme.

In addition there is a specialist module on communications skills; students must give an oral presentation to demonstrate their proficiency in English which they must pass in order to progress.
